

Things to Consider when Thinking about Joining a Motorcycle Club

Motorcycle clubs have become something iconic in society today. Whether it be through movies or media, motorcycle clubs have always found the spotlight. While certain clubs have reputations for being "tough and mean", most of the motorcycle clubs are simply a way for motorcycle enthusiasts to get together and enjoy motorcycles in general. Some clubs are for riding. Other clubs are for admiring. Either way, motorcycle clubs are a great way to meet people who enjoy motorcycles as you do. Because of the wide array of motorcycle clubs that are available for people to join, it can be confusing to try to narrow it down to a single club. By considering these five things, you will find it easy to choose the motorcycle club that you will enjoy the most.

1. How Much do you Ride your Bike? This is a simple but important question in terms of motorcycle club. Some motorcycle clubs have been formed for the sake of people getting together to ride their motorcycles together. Other motorcycle clubs have been formed to simply show off your motorcycles, admire other motorcycles, and to learn as much about motorcycles as possible. Knowing how much you ride, and how much you would like to ride can help you determine what kind of motorcycle club will fit you best.
2. Do you Enjoy the Culture? It is true that motorcycle enthusiasts are a part of a unique culture. Many of the motorcycle clubs have a distinct culture that finds itself scattered throughout every club. Not every club is the same, and the culture of each may be different, but it is important to do research on motorcycle clubs in general to understand who they are, how they act, and what their community is like. Understanding their culture is important to feeling close to a motorcycle club.
3. How Many Clubs Are There? There are multiple clubs that exist, even within a small radius. Knowing how many motorcycle clubs exist near you can help you find something close by. While some people like clubs that are far away, others want to be a part of a motorcycle club that is local.
4. How Much Does it Cost to Join? The dues for every motorcycle club are different. While there may be some motorcycle clubs that are free, many feature dues that are a cost to the member at different points in time. It is important to understand the cost of joining the motorcycle club to figure out what kind of motorcycle club is right for you.
5. Does the Club Fit You? In the end, it is important to make sure that you find a motorcycle club that fits you. If you get along with the people, share the same interests, and have the same goals, you will have a much better time. Not every motorcycle club is for everyone, and that is ok. It is up to you to make sure that the club you join fits you well enough to make the experience enjoyable.
